DRAMATIC VERBAL DUELS IN MOSCOW TRIAL

Firm Denial of Russian Witnesses' Allegations By All British Accused Except MacDonald

STRANGE CHANGE IN MacDONALD

RENEWS "CONFESSIONS" AFTER ADJOURNMENT

DOLGOFF "BRIBE"

MOSCOW, APRIL 14.

EFFORTS BY THE PROSECUTION TO BRING HOME THE CHARGES AGAINST THORNTON, ONE OF THE SIX ENGLISHMEN ACCUSED OF MILITARY ESPIONAGE AND WRECKING ACTIVITIES, FORMED THE FEATURE OF THE SECOND AND THIRD DAYS OF THE HEARING.

Thornton vigorously defended himself. He declared that his main interest was information bearing on the Soviet Government's solvency in view of the large credits advanced to them by his firm.

M. Vishinsky showed surprise and suggested that this admission tallied with the Soviet accusations.

Nordwall and Gregory were drawn into the charges in the course of the hearings, both firmly denying the allegations.

"WHAT I WROTE WAS ALL NONSENSE"

The drama of Thursday morning's proceedings did not conclude wth MacDonald's withdrawal of his plea of guilty and denial of suggestions that he gave Thornton instructions for wrecking.

Thornton was then called and said he had made a false admission in prison because he had "lost his courage".

Asked when he regained it, he said "At 6 p.m. on April 4th"—when released on bail.

After the President of the Court had endeavoured unsuccessfully to persuade MacDonald to revert to his plea of guilty, the court adjourned.

This adjournment, during which MacDonald left the court in the hands of his Ogpu guards, was followed by a change in his behaviour which was remarked by all observers.

AGAIN ADMITS SPYING.

On resumption he was again questioned as to whether he admitted espionage and replied in low tones in the affirmative. He also stated that the collection of the information involved was suggested by Thornton and that he presumed that other Metropolitan Vickers employees were implicated.

He also admitted giving instructions for machine wrecking.

THORNTON UNDER FIRE.

The case was again adjourned until 6 p.m. when Thornton was again interrogated.

He retracted all his alleged confessions of spying contained in the indictment.

Thornton underwent a fire of questions from M. Roguinsky, the Assistant Public Prosecutor, who was seeking to prove that Thornton received secret information through MacDonald, who in turn obtained it from Gusev.

Thornton said: "I do not think I asked the engineers for secret information. I do not remember if I asked Gusev or not."

MACDONALD ACCUSES THORTON.

MacDonald was then again called. He stated bluntly that he collected information thrugh Gusev, which he transmitted to Tornton.

Thornton declared that he received no military information from MacDonald. The only information he received was that which was of interest to Metropolitan Vickers.

It was noticed that Mr. Peitze Chen, a son of Eugene Chen, was one of the spectatrs in Court.

THORNTON'S DEPOSITION.

Later, Thornton said he wished to retract the word "secret" from the deposition he signed in Lubyanka Prison on March 13, in which he alleged that he and Monkhouse collected secret information.

The latter passage was read from the deposition to the effect that the whole of the British personnel of Metropolitan Vickers had been gradually drawn into the spying system.

Thornton admitted writing it, but said he wanted to retract the whole of it.

"When I wrote it, it was all the same to me what I wrote. It is all nonsense."

Monkhouse said that Thornton's evidence was correct, but Madame Kutuzova, the Russian secretary of Metroplitan Vickers, contradicting Monkhouse, gave other sources from which she alleged information was received.

SABOTAGE PLANS DISCUSSED.

Miss Kutozova also alleged that Monkhouse and Thornton had not hesitated to discuss their plans for machine wrecking in her presence.

Thornton then admitted that Mr. Richards, the Metropolitan Vickers' London manager was also interested in information regarding the Soviet Union. When the latter's past as an intelligence officer in 1918 was mentioned, a murmur of interest ran through the court.

Thornton, continuing his evidence, denied that members of Metropolitan Vickers were engaged in spying activities. They collected harmless information, he said.

Asked to define spying, he said it consisted of the discovery of official secrets in an illegal way, and he added:

"I now say that what I signed was untrue. It was written under moral pressure after a long interrogation."

Vichinsky asked if Thornton desired to commit acts of wrecking and sabotage.

Thornton replied: "I always built, never destroyed."

BRILLIANT DUEL.

In the concluding stages, Thornton engaged in a brilliant duel with the prosecution. He faced the charges more and more firmly, while Monkhouse straightforwardly denied guilt of any crimes except his knowledge that three thousand roubles were handed to M. Dolgoff, the President of Electro-Import, which he supposed to be in the nature of a bribe given for the advancement of Metropolitan-Vickers' interests.

He added: "The document I signed concerning the bribery of M. Dolgoff was not written by me."

SOKOLOFF AND MONKHOUSE.

Sokoloff, the other Russian witness, testified that he did not know Monkhouse, with whom he had had no dealings. Gusev also said he did not know Monhouse.

The case was then adjourned.—Reuter and British Wireless.

GERMAN PROTEST TO BRITAIN

COMMONS CRITICISM OF HITLER REGIME

BERLIN CIRCLES DISPLEASED

Berlin, Apr. 15.

Sharply critical references in in the British House of Common on Thursday evening to the Hitler regime and its activities have annoyed official circles in Berlin.

The German Ambassadr in London has been instructed to lodge a protest with the British Government against the statements about Germany.

Sir Austen Chamberlain and Mr. Churchill.

Chamberlain, who said: This is no time to talk of concessions to a country where it is a crime to favour peace or to be a Jew.

Mr. Winston Churchill also shocked the Hitlerites by saying that if Germany was given full military equality a general European war would be in sight.

HOLIDAY FOOTBALL

FEW UPSETS IN BIG LEAGUE

ARSENAL'S GOOD WIN

London, Apr. 14.

Not a single visiting team in the first and second divisions garnered full points from the Good Friday programme in English league football, and only two managed drawn games.

The Arsenal thoroughly beat the Wednesday at Highbury in the most important tie of the day, and Chelsea helped themselves out of the relegation zone by scoring four times against Leicester.

In the second division, Stoke, present leaders dropped two points at Charlton, whilst the Spurs could only draw with Plymouth at White Hart Lane.

BRENTFORD FORCE AHEAD.

Brentford went a long way in their effort for promotion, by winning at Bristol, whilst Norwich and Reading were being defeated and Exeter held to a division of points by Clapton Orient.

The defeat of Hull and the success of Chester has opened up new championship prospects in the northern section. Incidentally the Crewe-Barrow match, to have been played at Barrow, was decided at Crewe, the Easter Monday fixture having been brought forward.

MUSSOLINI PLAN

EXPLANATION BY SIR JOHN SIMON

AMUSED BY HINT OF HYPNOTISM

London, Apr. 13.

The four-Power Pact negotiations between Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and Signor Mussolini formed the subject of an important statement by Sir John Simon to-night, during a debate on foreign affairs.

Referring to Signor Mussolini's proposals, Sir John Simon undertook to lay papers when the necessary leave to adopt such a course was obtained from those with whom the Government had been communicating.

The Government, he said, had made no comments or entered into any agreement of any kind. They wanted, by consultation and co-operation, to devise a plan by which the risk of opposing blocs between one nation and another would be minimised.

HIGH-SOUNDING NAME.

It was not the intention that these Powers should combine and attempt to impose their will on any of the lesser nations. The object in view was to try to select certain questions which might arise in Europe and secure collaboration on them, especially in the economic fields.

Sir John declared regarding the "so-called Four Power Pact," that such a high-sounding description was inapplicable to the Rome conversations and the whole idea that Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and he himself were hynoptised into agreeing to the rough draft of Signor Mussolini's Plan was complete moonshine.

NOT COMMITTED.

They examined the documents with care and attention but did not commit themselves to an agreement.

He gave an assurance that the Government had no intention of combining with the other great Powers to impose their wills on other peoples.

Mr. George Lansbury complained that Sir John Simon, in his review of foreign affairs, had been silent regarding China and Japan. He hoped the Foreign Secretary would take an early opportunity of dealing with the matter.—Reuter and British Wireless.

FARM BILL SILVER AND THE

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, pointed out that rejection of such a scheme would not mean that the Senate was against inflation, but that inflation should be considered separately.—Reuter.

FIRM NOTE TO SOVIET

NEW MANCHUKUO DEMANDS

RAILWAY CRISIS DEVELOPMENT

Harbin, Apr. 14.

Manchukuo has lodged a formal demand for the immediate return to the Chinese Eastern Railway of locomotives taken into Soviet territory.

Future developments of the dispute are uncertain. The Soviet appear to be conciliatory up to a point, but speculation is rife regarding response to the latest demand.

The Moscow Government have already indicated their willingness to comply with the request for the withdrawal to the U.S.S.R. of the Soviet Customs and officials from Manchuli and Suifenho, which have been Russian Customs points since the construction of the C.E.R.

NOTE PRESENTED.

Following Moscow's announcement of willingness to return, when possible, the C.E.R. wagons taken into Soviet territory, together with the refusal to return the locomotives to Manchukuo, the Foreign Ministry of Manchukuo presented the Soviet Consul-General at Harbin with a Note demanding the immediate unconditional return of all C.E.R. locomotives.

The opinion is held that if the Soviets call a strike or lockout, or hedge regarding the demand, Manchukuo will seize the Chinese Railway.—Reuter.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

BEAUTY IN BUSINESS.

Good Look An Asset.

"Good looks, after all, are a girl's best asset, even to-day. In business and private life they help her to success," said a young London girl recently, after she had been awarded £300 for a facial disfigurement caused by a motor accident.

In these days, when most girls are good to look at, if they are not good-looking, it is difficult to say how far their look have made or will made for success in business. Looks are certainly an asset, and, other things beings equal, they help to tip the scale in a girl's favour, especially where advancement rests on some man's preference.

I know an office where a vacancy arose for a superintendent of typists. Of the two girls on the staff who were in the running for the job, one was pretty and the other plain. Now the plain girl was more "brainy" than her rival, and on merits the other girls expected her to succeed. But the choice lay with a man; and the pretty girl secured the appointment.

In certain kinds of business, beauty is almost essential to success. The proprietess of a beauty parlour, for instance, should be a shining example of the efficacy of her own treatment, and an assistant in a fashionable florists should vie in bloom with the flowers she sells. But women in all walks of business life whose duties bring them into frequent contact with client or customer find that beauty is a lure that few can withstand, especially when it is alied with that, grace, and good manners.

It is because all these qualities are seldom found in combination in the individual that there are not more women at the helm of our great industrial undertakings. Men resent the merely "clever" woman, and they harbour no love for the woman with "push." They may be attracted by a pretty woman; but to one possessed of brains, beauty, and charm they will show deference and respect.

But it is continued effort that brings success. Although a pretty girl may hold sway now and again on the strength of her looks, lasting success comes only to those who can build a career for themselves with fade and afford little support in middleage; character built on a stronger and surer foundation will then come proudly into its own.—

IT'S A SPORTING IDEA

Martha Sleeper

Martha Sleeper is wearing a smart black and white checked waistcoat jacket, with short sleeves, double-breasted and finished with a trim white cording. There's a topcoat, tailored as the waistcoat and slightly mannish in line, and the costume is completed by a black, wrap-around, straightline skirt.

Dona Roberts and Dick Powell were at the beach recently. Donna wore gray slacks, red and gray beach sandals and a red turtle-neck sweater which was backless.

Peggy Hopkins Joyce, lunching with Maurice Chevalier in the Paramount cafe, wore a brown English tweed suit with a yellow turtle-neck sweater. Her brown fedora hat had just a touch of mannishness.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.

By Alicia Hart

HAVE you a size 16 complex? Do you still wriggle into things that are really too small and not realize why you are not entirely comfortable, just because that size used to fit you?

Even women who keep themselves nice and slim usually find that they take things made slightly differently, as the years go on.

I have known women who wore sleeves so tight that their arms looked as if they were about to burst through. I know one woman who came in one day with a beaming face.

"Do you know," she regaled the group, "I've been so uncomfortable, for a long time now, without realizing what was the matter. Now I've bought both my girdle any my brassiere one size larger and you'd be surprised how relieved I feel."

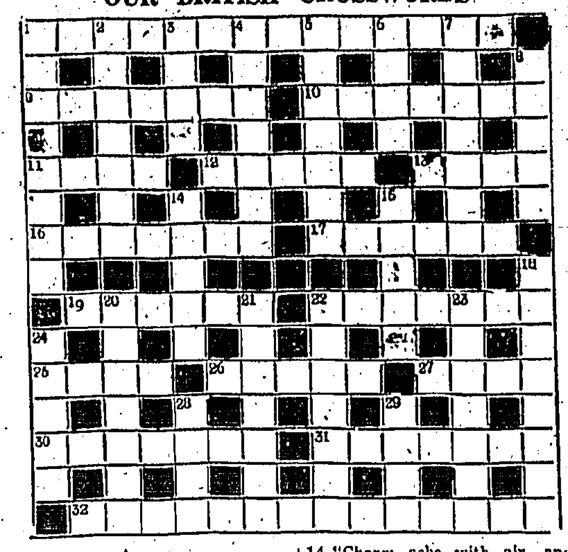

Shoes are perhaps the biggest single item to consider. Are yours long enough? The width makes little difference, just so your toes don't get pinched. But shortness in length throws all those delicate bones of your feet out of place. Short stockings are almost as bad as short shoes.

Armholes are another thing to watch. Do you need just a little more room around the armholes? Well, get it in your next dress. Your circulation needs it, even if your vanity doesn't. And right there across your shoulders you may be feeling strained. Well, a half inch wider in the back and a half inch wider in the front won't make you look any bigger but will relax you and make you comfortable.

Foundation garments should be fitted carefully. Certainly sane, modern women know there's no use lacing. Yet many women do get these stretch-both-ways garments too small. The result is that they "ride up" and you bulge over them. Neither is pleasant nor pleasing.

Women over 35 are the ones to watch these things. And they might pass it on to their husbands too. For men err more than women in continuing to get collars, shirts, underthings and hose too small, after their dimensions demand a larger size.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

NONA MORAN, who supports her mother, invalid father, little sister, KITTY, and never-do-well brother, BUD, is determined to marry for wealth and position. She is receptionist for a Wall Street law firm and in the office sees men of the world to which she aspires.

Mona's brother announces that her child-hood sweetheart, STEVE SACCARELLI, grandson of the ice and coal dealer, has returned home. Steve disappeared three years earlier and it was rumoured he was in prison though Mona never believed this.

He meets him on her way to work one morning. Steve is handsome, well dressed and well mannered. Mona is not anxious to renew the friendship but agrees to dine with Steve. Later in the day she meets HARRY TOWNEND, a young man of wealth and social prominence. She refuses Harry's dinner invitation, telling him she never makes engagements with clients or employers.

CHAPTER IV.

After leaving Mona at the office Steve headed his car northward with no plan except to go home until time to call for her at five.

His hand lay on the wheel mechanically, the car responding to his slightest touch with a sensitive race horse. He had not been to bed. Three years of loneliness coupled with that sense of security provided by sufficient money honestly come by had added a piquant flavour to New York's night life.

Before Steve had gone away he had seen only the outskirts of that life. To-day he could take part and fling foolish gold with the others.

And Steve wanted to show Mona this New York to which he had ascended. He had acquired an ease of manner, a sense of dress, an air. It stirred his vanity to be able to show Mona the new Steve, to walk on Broadway the Park Avenue way.

It was true, as he had told Mona, that before he had disappeared he had been involved with gangsters, innocently enough at first, had driven what the tabloids refer to as the "hold-up car," though as far as Steve knew he had been involved in no gun-play.

It seemed to be easy money. All Steve had to do was pick up his fare as prearranged, drive to a certain hide-out and collect his split. That the gang held out on him frequently made little difference. What he received was velvet and his risk was slight.

When he came to realize that the gang which hired him was not bound on pleasure parties, that the cash they handed him in furtive though generous amounts was offered usually after newspapers had printed accounts of this robbery or that along the jewel centres of the town Steve tried to pull out.

He was approached carefully and warned. Leave town and they'd get him. Or let the cops get him for a stretch at Sing Sing.

"You haven't anything on me, buddies," Steve insisted.

"Yeah? Tell that to the judge and see what it gets you!" They spoke glibly of accessory before and after the fact, of receiving stolen goods (this consisted of carrying the swag, unapprised, to the fences) of "raps" taken by innocent members of their organization.

Oh yes, they had plenty on him. So Steve perceived.

"Yellow," the gang called him.

"Green," replied Steve. But privately he told himself, "Getting less green!"

It happened that Steve, back in the days before his association with "the gang" had often had as passenger in his cab a young man about town whose wavering footsteps could not always make the distance to his club at one o'clock in the morning.

Cruising about the supper club zone in that dull period just after the theatre crowds had been cared for, Steve formed the habit of picking up this passenger and dropping him safely at his club entrance.

This service was the beginning of a friendship. The night after the next jewel robbery had blazoned itself in morning and evening papers, Steve, driving idly past the club, had seen his old friend in an honest and upright condition waggling a finger into the traffic for a taxi. Steve drew to the curb and the young man got into the cab.

He was going to South America that evening, the passenger said. To make conversation Steve announced he would like to go too.

"Come on!" The invitation was spontaneous and heartfelt." Here's the idea. Wind up any business you may have on hand and call for me at 11. You can ship as my man. The old boy got cold feet yesterday."

The trivial matter of passport could be arranged unblushingly. Baggage, my eye! Money? Here in the old jeans aplenty.

It was hastily agreed. Steve "wound up his business" by changing the licence plate and ditching the taxi out Canarsie way, then lying low in a downtown movie house until sailing time.

In an open-all-evening shop selling men's wear he bought a hat designed to change his identity completely—a trick foisted on the world by none other than Colonel Lindbergh and worth adopting.

In a hired taxi he called for his benefactor at 11 o'clock. They boarded the Miranda in the North river, the white stars and blinking moon the only interested witnesses. New York slipped away at midnight from the ship's placid stern.

And that was that.

Now after three years Steve was back, a man of affairs. A partner, in fact, in a prosperous business in Brazil. He wanted to show the folks and he wanted to show Mona.

As he drove north Steve reflected that he wanted to take Mona to the swanky supper club he had found last evening.

She was a knockout but maybe she didn't have the things to wear. Not that he would mind—but she would. He had been away from civilization for three years but he knew women. It was no cinch these days for a girl to support herself, let alone her family. That good for nothing brother of Mona's—

Steve himself had bushels of money. Why not send her a gown just to wear that evening?

It did not occur to him that Mona's code might fail to include the acceptance of gowns sent to her by men friends, however well intended such a gift might be.

Steve closed his eyes and thought—as he had often thought—of Mona in a costume really befitting her beauty. That graceful figure, that hair, that creamy skin, the gray-green eyes, the wistfulness of Mona's smile, strangely at variance

THREE INJURED AT WEST POINT

MAN SAID TO HAVE ATTACKED WOMEN

FIVE A.M. DRAMA

The Western district was the scene of a domestic drama early this morning, when Fung Tse-yuen, 43, a merchant, is alleged to have attempted to take the life of his 28-year-old concubine, injured an elder woman who intervened, and then attempted to commit suicid by throwing himself from verandah.

All three victims in the affair were taken to Hospitnl, the concubine being in a critical state from a fractured skull.

Shortly after 5 o'clock the inmates on the first floor of 218, Des Vœux Road West were aroused by screams from a cubicle, and Fung Hoi, aged 50, hurried to render assistance. As she entered, she was struck with a marble clock. The man then, it is alleged, threw himself from the verandah into the street.

Police officers believe the man ran amok. He was picked up suffering from internal injuries, including, it is thought, a fractured pelvis.

The condition of the elder woman, believed to be his mother, is not reported as serious.

The Police belief that the man was not in full possession of his reason seems to be supported by the fact that on his person were found banknotes amounting to $500 which were all torn up.

TO SUBMIT TO CHINESE REGULATIONS

Nanking, Apr. 12.

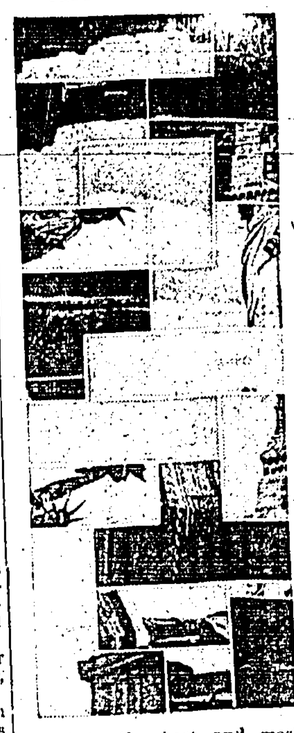

A spokesman of the Ministry of Industry intimated that China will be submitting at the forthcoming International Labour Conference, a proposal requiring foreign factories in China to submit to Chinese factory regulations and inspections by authorised Government agents.—Reuter.

His Excellency the Governor has appoined Mr. S. Kennedy-Skipton to be Deputy Estate Duty Commissioner.

with its setting—

Steve laughed aloud as an idea occurred to him. Go to Pilgrim's and make old Pilgrim dress Mona up!

"They don't have anything too good for her, at that," Steve told himself.

Two hours' consultation with Henri at Pilgrim's did much to deplete Steve's ideas as well as his bank roll.

He slipped five dollars to the model displaying the gown because her colouring approached Mona's and because she had shown untiring patience. The messenger boy got another five to insure prompt delivery.

Then Steve dropped into a florist's, left an order and took his way to his mother's for a nap.

On the way up he recalled the proposed visit to the hospital. That necessitated other purchases and when a dressing gown, a steamer basket of fruit and some tobacco had been added he nosed the car at last toward the little Third avenue flat.

Maybe Mona wouldn't like his buying all these things. That idea suddenly occurred to Steve. He dashed for a telephone and only by a series of threats did he get the magnificent Henri on the wire.

"Say," Steve said wildly, "slip a note in that box, will you? Something to the effect that I'm only lending the stuff. She might not take it otherwise see? Fix it up, you know how. And sign it 'Steve.'"

"Ze box for Mees Moran? She has gone already." Henri waved an apologetic hand unseen over the phone.

"You are a liar," Steve told him cheerfully. "If it has, then get it back. I want that note enclosed."

"Yes Sair."

Marvelling at the innocence of the gentleman—an innocence already perceived and exploited when the bill was presented—Henri did as he was bid.

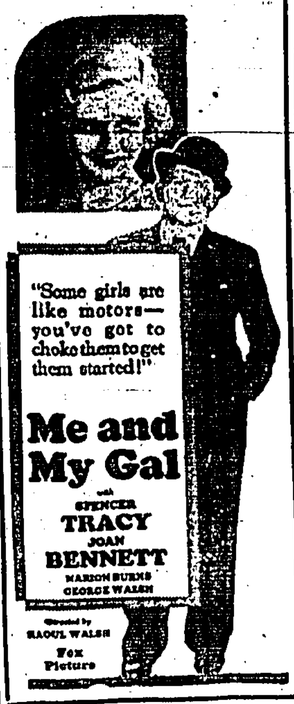

Henri's acquaintance with young ladies had not included those who required an apology for sending around ermine wraps and Patou gowns.

MOSCOW TRIAL

MacDONALD CHANGES PLEA OF GUILTY

Moscow, Apr. 13.

William MacDonald who supplied the sensation on the opening day of the trial yesterday by pleading guilty to the charges brought by the Soviet against himself and five other British engineers, was again the cause of the excitement in the Trade Union Hall to-day.

MacDonald repudiated his plea, denied the charges and contradicted many of the admissions he had made on the previous day. In cool and calculated tones he denounced the statements he had made.

The court was only half-full today in view of the full working day. Many of the audience carried copies of the Izvestia Pravda, containing two pages of yesterday's proceedings.

The astonishing development occurred shortly after the reopening of the trial at 10 a.m. when MacDonald, speaking English in a loud voice, repudiated his yesterday's plea of guilty and declared that he did not tell a man named Sokolov to commit sabotage.

The Prosecutor.—Why did you say so in the indictment?

MacDonald.—I considered it convenient in the circumstances, and no translation of my statement was made in my presence, I admitted that I was guilty yesterday.

The Prosecutor.—Do you say so to-day?

MacDonald.—No. I am actually not guilty.

MacDonald denied he had paid Sokolov for information but admitted he had paid Gusev and others 2,500 roubles for overtime, partly from the firm's moneys and partly from his own pocket.

More Convenient.

M. Vyshinsky, the prosecutor, showed MacDonald that he had written in his own handwriting that he had received secret information from Sokolov and asked "Why did you write that if you denied it to-day?"

MacDonald replied that under the circumstances it was more convenient to write that testimony.

A most profound sensation was caused by MacDonald's testimony and the sudden turning of the tables. In the midst of it the microphones "broke down" and therefore, not all the public were able to understand what had happened.

The interpreter was frequently called to order to get the exact shades of meaning to MacDonald's testimony, which momentarily confounded the prosecution.

Standing upright, despite his lame left leg, MacDonald denounced in cool calculated tones, the statements contained both in the indictment and in his written statement.

Breeze With Prosecutor.

After 20 minutes adjournment, a breeze occurred between Thornton and Vyshinsky. Thornton denied the espionage allegations and said that he knew everything from working in the vicinity of military areas.

Vyshinsky.—So you heard aeroplane engines?

Thornton (sarcastically).—Yes. Aeroengines do make a noise.

Asked why he had given untrue evidence, Thornton answered: "Because I lost my nerve. The serious charges have made heavy impressions on me.

Judge Ulrich.—When did your nerve return?

Thornton.—On the evening of April 4 when I was released.

A spectator whispered to Reuter: "Do you realise that this trial is costing the Soviet twenty-five millions, while the bribes mentioned would only buy a few typewriters.

Under cross-examination that the alleged evidence of each had been read to the other, MacDonald became exhausted, and was allowed to sit down. He declared he was under the impression that Monkhouse and Cushny were carrying out espionage.

Thornton asserted he was unaware that MacDonald was wrecking or spying "or I would have kicked him out," he said. MacDonald exclaimed "He knew of spying," and then limped out of the box.

The court then adjourned.

This morning's conflicting evidence is explained by the fact that MacDonald has been imprisoned at Lubianka and does not understand the whole situation.—Reuter.

Labour Appeal.

London, April 13.

The former Labour Ministers including Mr. Arthur Henderson, have appealed to the Government for three months extension of the present trade agreement with Russia, in order "to keep open the few remaining international channels profitable to industry and trade."

The appeal states that the extension would be indicative of a strong desire by Britain for friendly relations with Russia, and might conceivably be of greater service to the Britons who are under trial in Moscow, than the policy of threats of economic reprisals.—Reuter Morning Post Special.

JEWS IN GERMANY

[To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.]

Sir,—We beg to inform you that we are in receipt of telegraphic informations from the Ostasiatische Verein, Hamburg, the Koelnische Zeitung and other important Corporations in various parts of Germany, according to which all news about alleged atrocities in Germany are absolutely without foundation, that peace and security are guaranteed for all and that measures of the Authorities are carried out with the utmost discipline. All telegrams stress the point that the German National Revolution must be considered as a final defeat of Bolshevism in Germany and Europe.

Dr. Vogel, SECRETARY.

Shanghai, 3rd April, 1933.

MR. S. W. FLEGG.

WELL-KNOWN RESIDENT DIES AT HOME.

We regret to report that a cable was received in Hongkong yesterday announcing the death, which occurred on Tuesday, at Ashford, Kent, of Mr. Sydney Maitland Flegg, formerly of the Royal Naval Dockyard, Hongkong, after a long illness.

The late Mr. Flegg first joined the local dockyard in 1919 and was here until 1924, when he was transferred. He came out again in 1926, but on account of ill-health returned Home in August last year. He was Head Clerk in the Electrical Department at the time of his departure.

Suffering from pernicious anaemia, deceased went into Kowloon Hospital in May last year, and was taken Home in a hospital ship. When he arrived in England, he was for sometime in the Naval Hospital at Chatham and was then invalided out of the dockyard service.

Mr. J. S. Flegg, of the Waterworks Department of Hongkong P.W.D., the only son of the deceased, received a letter from him by the last mail, in which he stated that he had been for a holiday. He had apparently had a relapse which culminated in his death.

Deceased will be best remembered in Hongkong as a keen bowler, and had appeared on various occasions for the Civil Service Cricket Club and the Craigengower C. C. He was also a member of the Cathay Lodge of Free masons.

The late Mr. Flegg, who leaves a widow at Home besides his son in Hongkong, was 57 years of age. His demise will be regretted by a large circle of friends out here and much sympathy will be felt for his bereaved relatives.

The funeral took place at Ashford at 3.30 p.m. (Greenwich time) yesterday.

FALSE PRETENCES

DEFENDANT FINED FOR TRADE DOLLAR TRICK

Stainer Gifford, a Eurasian, 29 years of age, made his second appearance before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon, after a week's remand, on a charge of having allegedly obtained $2.80 local currency by falsely pretending that the exchange of a U.S.A. trade dollar, on April 6, was worth $3.80, whereas it was only worth $1. He was convicted and fined $100, or two months' hard labour.

Detective Sergeant Fitches, opening the case against the defendant, who had pleaded not guilty at his first appearance, said that the complainant, Ho Chau, was a motor-car driver in the Man Wo garage, 251, Hennessey Road. On the night in question about 12.20 the defendant entered the garage, and spoke to the complainant in pidgin English.

The words, said Sergeant Fitches were to this effect. "I wanchee car go to Star Ferry. How much-ee."

Defendant then pulled out from his pocket four or five of these trade dollars, and said, "One piecee worth $3.80. I no have got Hongkong money, but one piecee worth $3.80. You give me $2.80," and tendered trade dollar to the complainant.

"This Dollar Business."

Complainant examined the dollar, and as he had read reports in the newspapers of "this dollar business," he spoke to the defendant in Chinese. Defendant said "No, no, no." A further conversation in Chinese took place, after which complainant called a Chinese constable and defendant was arrested.

Sergeant Fitches, continuing said that defendant was brought into the charge room when he was present. Complainant made his complaint, and he asked defendant whether he had anything to say. He also asked defendant whether he had any Hongkong money, but defendant answered in the negative. He then asked defendant whether he had any more of these dollars, but defendant said no. He then gave instructions that the defendant be searched, at which defendant produced eight more of these dollars, making a total of thirteen. Three genuine Hongkong dollars were also found on defendant, and also twenty or thirty cents. Defendant would not say from where he had obtained the Hongkong dollars.

The following morning, defendant was charged, and he then said he had obtained the money from a moneychanger near Queen's Theatre. Defendant was taken to this moneychancer's shop, where he pointed out a man who had given him the money. The money changer admitted defendant had purchased the money at the rate of $1.10 and had bought about seven or eight. The moneychanger also asserted that defendant frequently visited his shop and purchased a number of these dollars at the same rate. The money changer had 62 such dollars, but, said Sergeant Fitches, he was covered by his trade licence.

Defendant In Box.

After the prosecution's case had closed, Gifford entered the witness box. He stated his other name was Wong Siu-cheung, and he had been employed for the past ten months at Cho Brothers, an insurance firm at Canton. He was a travelling salesman and was here on a month's leave. Cho Brothers were agents for the American Dunlop Tyre Company.

Defendant continued that Sergeant Fitches tried to force him to say that he obtained the trade dollars from Shanghai. He bought the dollars with the intention of melting them down to make silver ware. He was told by a goldsmith that an American trade dollar had 90 per cent silver, while the Hongkong dollar contained only 50 or 60 per cent.

Questioned by Sergeant Fitches defendant admitted he was not on leave, and stated he had left the firm in Canton. He denied that for the past five years he had been unemployed and had been moving about between Hongkong, Canton and Macao. He left the Blue Funnel Line in April 1931. He had worked as assistant purser aboard the Tyndareus, Philoctetes and Protesilaus.

His Worship said he was afraid he could not believe the defendant's evidence except for statements that were corroborated.

Dollar Ruling.

Sergeant Fitches remarked there was no criminal record of the defendant. He had a mother and a sister in Hongkong but they would have nothing to do with him, neither his friends. Defendant, to his knowledge, had been advised to leave the Colony but he had persisted in staying here. Of course, he was quite at liberty to do so, he added.

After sentence had been passed, Sergeant Fitches said there was a movement afoot now to obtain some ruling as to what should be done with trade dollars. People were being defrauded daily, and it was persons of the defendant's type that bought these coins and disposed of them at cigarette hawkers' stalls.

SENT TO PRISON FOR FIVE YEARS

London, Apr. 13.

Lieut. Norman Baillie-Stewart, of the Seaforth Highlanders, was to-day cashiered and sentenced to five years penal servitude, after having been found guilty on three charges under the Official Secrets Act.

It was alleged during the court martial at Chelsea Barracks, that Baillie-Stewart had been in communication with Berlin and had divulged certain information.—Reuter.

U.S. TRADE DOLLARS.

Four Foreigners Charged With False Pretences.

THREE SEPARATE CASES.

The case in which Francis Raymond and Edward Shuster are charged with obtaining $76 from Jimmy's Kitchen, Wanchai branch, by falsely pretending that 20 American trade dollars which they changed were each worth $3.80 Hongkong currency, whereas in point of fact they were worth only a dollar, again came before Mr. Schofield at the Central Court yesterday.

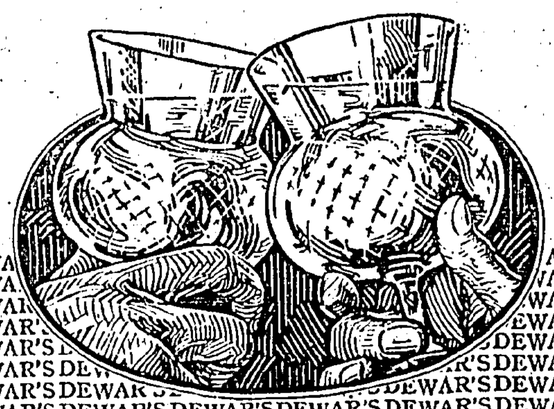

Mr. M. K. Lo appeared for Shuster, and the case was adjourned for hearing on April 25, at 2.30 p.m.

The case against Jose Lorede Novarro, who was similarly but separately charged, was also mentioned, the accused on his reappearance expressing a wish to be present at the trial of the other two defendants.

The Magistrate asked Det. Sergt. Fitches, the prosecuting police officer, if Novarro was going to give evidence, and the officer replied that the police would have to consider the point.

Novarro's case was formally adjourned for a week.

In reply to the Court, Sergt. Fitches said the case against the man Gifford, now under remand, would have to be heard independently, as it did not arise from the same facts.

CHILD WELFARE

Hongkong, which has in latter years been concerning itself with child welfare, should find much of interest in the League of Nation's activities on this subject. The annual session of the Advisory Committee which is entrusted with this problem, is now in session, and amongst the subjects which figure on the agenda are reports on several enquiries which the Committee is undertaking. One of these is an enquiry into the legislation in various countries governing the admission of children to cinematograph performances. In view of the allegation that juvenile criminals are said to get much of their inspiration for their exploits from seeing certain types of films and yet there is a considerable divergence of opinion amongst experts in Great Britain as to the best means of protecting children from the effects of harmful or undesirable films, an enquiry of this kind into the experiences of other countries should throw some valuable light on the problem. Other problems that are being investigated by the committee are the welfare of blind children, and in particular their physical education, and problems affecting illegitimate children. Of a different order is consideration of a report on Youth Hostels. In view of the fact that this movement is growing, this report, too, should be of interest to those who feel that the Youth Hostel movement is a healthy and desirable one. The protection of children of migrant workers is to be dealt with by the Committee at the request of the International Labour Office, and is a matter which has obvious international bearings. One of the most important matters which the Committee has to deal with at this session is the question of the complete reorganisation of the committee itself. This will be considered at a joint session with the Advisory Committee on the Traffic in Women and Children as the proposal has been put forward that a single committee should be set up to deal with all social questions coming under the purview of the League. This idea does not, however, find favour with members of the Child Welfare Committee as they believe that problems relating to such diverse matters as child welfare, the traffic in women and children and prison reform, call in each case for treatment by experts. They agree, however, that reorganisation in other directions is desirable.

European Tension

The world is still without a clue to the Hitler programme in foreign affairs, though French alarm remains as vociferous as ever and suspicion has entered into more than one English mind. The focus of interest for those wondering what sort of world is about to arise in Europe has now shifted to Rome, where Signor Mussolini is endeavouring to formulate a common Fascist policy, with a Four-Power Pact as its basis. Italy's intervention is well-timed. It may also be regarded as a safeguard. Mussolini, it is assumed with confidence, will insist on the fundamental principle that while prepared to support the demand for Peace Treaty revision, he will not countenance the employment of force. Franco-Italian relations are difficult, but Italy is no more anxious for war than any other country, though she fears that unless the big Powers do get together away from the turmoil and "intrigue" of vested interests, and small Power votes, the cause of world peace will be in jeopardy. It is felt that if the big Powers can reach a common understanding, settle details of their own armament problems, they might well afford to risk unpopularity with the smaller States. France is blamed in Italy for the present impasse, though Britain is also criticised on the score that her representatives give way too easily to France's "war panic" and have failed to accept the logical consequence of the recent assertion that Great Britain is not a continental Power. Meanwhile, a new factor has been introduced by the "interesting" visit of the Austrian Chancellor to Rome. This is reviving rumours of Austro-Hungarian plans for re-unification and the restoration of the Hapsburgs. The opportunity seems to be Signor Mussolin's to do historic good or harm in Europe.

THE INFLATIONISTS

What may turn out to be an important movement is at present going on among a number of Conservative members of Parliament. For some time many of them have been in favour of currency reform, with the idea of making this the spearhead of an expansionist policy. They have not hesitated to put this idea forward in the various debates that have been held on unemployment, and they have now decided to arange a number of meetings which, it is hoped, will bring together all those interested in the subject. The group is said to be alarmed by the attitude of the Government, which is that the consideration of such a proposal cannot be undertaken until the World Economic Conference is held, and it will do everything possible to get the Cabinet to take the initiative instead of waiting for co-operation from abroad. The movement is by no means confined to members of Parliament, and has behind it the support of a number of influential people in the City. It is, incidentally, an interesting fact that the Ministry of Labour is giving detailed consideration to the scheme put forward by Sir Harold Bowden for using the dole to subsidise employment. This proposal may quite possibly be raised when the Ministry meets representatives of the employers and the unions to discuss "the method by which the absorption of workers into industry might be examined in a practical way."

THE CROSS BEFORE CHRISTIANITY

By E. L. ALLEN

A contemporary novelist tells in one of his books of a tourist who is conducted round a quarter in Athens in which the spade of the excavator has been at work. The guide points out the ruins of an ancient church, and draws her attention to a crucifix which has been discovered there. It belongs to the fifth century. 'How interesting!' is the comment, 'now will that be B.C. or A.D.?' We are supposed to think of that question as an absurd one, but it may be that it is by no means as absurd as we might think. For the Cross—leaving aside, of course, what distinguished a crucifix from a simple cross—is by no means an exclusively Christian symbol. The fact is, it is one of the oldest objects of worship in the world.

A cross composed of two lines cutting one another, one vertical and the other horizontal, sometimes standing by itself and sometimes enclosed within a circle, can be traced right back to the earliest civilisations. In some places, to be sure, we need not suppose that it is anything more than an ornament, but there are times when the presence alongside of it of human or animal figures shows quite clearly that it has some sort of religious significance.

MINOS OF CRETE

Most of us were brought up on the story of King Minos of Crete, who kept in his labyrinth a monster called the Minotaur, which consumed an annual meal of Athenian youths and maidens, till the king's daughter, Ariadne, fell in love with Theseus, giving him a clue with which to find his way about the labyrinth and a sword with which to kill the monster. We had always thought it a mere fairy-tale, till one day the palace of King Minos was dug up and his very labyrinth was brought to light! In that palace of a civilisation so lost that men refused to believe it had ever existed, crosses were found. The same emblem appears in early Persian pottery, and sometimes it has been found on designs, crowning the mast of a ship. Curiously enough, early Christianity seems to have been slow to make any use of the Cross for artistic purposes, but somewhere about the end of the second century it is to be found all over the Roman world.

When in 1519 Cortes landed on Yucatan, he unfurled a banner which bore the inscription: Friends, let us follow the Cross, and under this sign, if we have faith, we shall conquer.' True to the manner of his times, he proposed to combine personal enrichment with patriotism and to make a trio of motives by adding to these the conversion of the heathen Mexicans. On landing in the neighbourhood of an Indian town, he made his way into the temple, a splendid building several stories high. Passing into the inner court, he started back in amazement—there in front of him stood a cross of stone and lime, 'ten palms high', the chronicler says. His men came crowding round. 'What!' they exclaimed, 'in the remotest West, in a dark heathen temple, the Cross of our Saviour is waiting for us!' The same emblem was to be found almost everywhere after that, and the line of march upon Mexico City was dotted with two sets of crosses, those which the invaders had set up behind them and those which had been receiving the worship of the people for centuries!

The cross in Yucatan was said to be associated with the raingod. Those in other parts of the world are usually supposed to be symbols of life and fertility. There may be some to whom it comes as a bit of a shock to hear that what they had thought was through and through Christian had been counted sacred for centuries before the first Good Friday. Personally, I am not in the least disturbed by such discoveries, I rather rejoice in them. I like to think that Christ came into the world, not like a meteorite suddenly dropping on us out of the blue, but as the light towards which we had all along been groping, as an answer to what had been stirring in our minds since the very beginning of things.

The early Christians had the same problem when they found that the heathenism around them had not a few rites and beliefs that were remarkably like their own. Some said that this was a bit of the devil's trickery, a counterfeit to put people off from insisting on the real article! My sympathies are rather with the man who said it was a proof that 'the human heart is naturally Christian'.

PHIPPS Protests At

HOMER AS BEST-SELLER

Outlook for the classics (Noon wire and double):

"I believe that Greek is completely played out." (The Earl of Midleton, in a speech at the Taunton School Old Boys' Association dinner.)

How Greek has evaded the vigilance of the N.S.P.C.C. is a mystery to me.

Delicately nurtured youths are whisked away from home, shot into some dim academic compound and given great lumps of Homer.

Even with a library of cribs it takes them years to hack their way through the dank jungle of Athenian best-sellers.

Plato, Remosthenes, Æschlus, Euripides, Aristophanes—as each is desperately digested, another rises in his place like a spectre, dripping with diabolical idioms and eccentricities of style.

Somehow the years roll on, the back of the lexicon (and its owner) are old and bent, and at long last the victims totter brokenly from the plaudits of a prize-giving, the tears rolling down their seamed and coarsened faces and falling quietly on to their brand new diplomas (or whatever fatuous talisman they have been given to remind them of their slavery).

And then?

Well, what about engineering, my boy? What about sales management? What about law?

What about them?

They're all Greek to him.

"I'll bet he is the tall, dark, man the fortune teller told me to beware of."

KEEN BASEBALL TUSSLES

YANKEES JUST BEAT BOSTON

New York, April 14.

Five home runs were obtained to-day, the second of the baseball season.

Forty-five thousand spectators were present at the Yankee Stadium, where Mayor O'Brien threw in the first ball, to witness the Yankee nose out Boston by a four-three score in a tense struggle.

Washington put over another convincing victory against the Athletics.

The New York Giants were again prevented from playing their match with Boston. Snow stopped it to-day.

Results, home team given first, follow:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

	R.	H.	E.
Philadelphia	4	12	0
Brooklyn	5	9	1
Cincinnati	2	4	3
Pittsburgh	5	12	1
Chicago	1	6	0
St. Louis	3	6	0

(Collins homered for St. Louis)

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

GEHRIG'S SECOND HOME RUN

YESTERDAY'S PROGRAMME WASHED OUT

New York, April 14.

Rain ruined both National and American League programme to-day, only three matches being played.

Brooklyn easily accounted for Philadelphia on the latter's pitch in the National League, and New York scalped Boston 6-2, Gehrig obtaining his second home run in his first two matches of the season. Results:—

NATIONAL

	R.	H.	E.
Philadelphia	1	7	1
Brooklyn	7	15	1

The following games were abandoned owing to rain: New York at Boston, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, St. Louis at Chicago.

AMERICAN.

New York	6	5	0
Boston	2	5	2
(Gehrig and Ruffing scored home runs for New York)
Washington	1	6	2
Philadelphia	5	9	1

(Liggins home run for Philadelphia)

MOSCOW TRIAL DUELS

The main issue before the Court when the third day's proceedings started was whether the three thousand roubles given to the Soviet engineer, M. Dolgoff by Thornton was a loan or a bribe.

SELF-RIGHTEOUS WITNESS.

Dolgoff declared that he regarded the money as a corrupt payment and he handed it over to the authorities:

"I am very conscientious," he declared.

Despite Dolgoff's air of self-righteousness, his confident answers to all questions made a good impression.

Thornton admitted making the gift but asserted that the money was a loan for buying a room. He took no receipt "as Dolgoff said it was not neccessary."

"Confessions" of sabotage executed on the incitement of the accused, MacDonald and Nordwall next held the stage.

BOLT INTO GENERATOR.

M. Kotliarevsky, the head of the turbine department at the Zuevka Electricity Works, said that acting on the request of MacDonald, he threw a bolt into a generator and wrecked the motor.

MacDonald paid him a thousand roubles for carrying out the act of sabotage. He also supplied MacDonald with blue prints of the Zuevka station.

Succeeding witnesses charged Nordwall with inciting them to sabotage and asserted that they faithfully performed the tasks he set them on a fairly extensive scale.

One of them declared that Nordwall paid him five thousand roubles.

NORDWALL PROTESTS.

Nordwall listened to the evidence in astonishment and then warmly told the Court: "All this evidence is absolutely untrue. I didn't bribe anybody. I did not plot against the Soviet."

A fur coat transaction between Nordwall and one of the accusing witnesses was then brought into the case. Nordwall explained that he sold the coat on behalf of an English engineer and received cash which he remitted to the owner.

The prosecutor, M. Vishinsky, made the most of certain discrepancies between Nordwall's present statement on this point and his pre-trial statement.

Prominent spectators in the Court to-day were M. Karl Radek, one of the Soviet Government executive heads and M. Michiel Borodin.

The rest of the morning session was occupied with the examination of Lebedev, another of the Russian accused, who is claimed by the prosecution to have participated with Lobanov in the wrecking organisation at Ivgres under Nordwall's instructions.

CURT REPLIES.

After a three-hour adjournment, Nordwall was again in the box and he created an excellent impression by his curt and decisive answers.

Nordwall referred to a mistake in erecting a turbine, in which connexion Ollenik, one of the Russian employees of Metropolitan Vickers, in reply to a question, declared that Nordwall was to blame because he overlooked the mistake in the blueprints.

Nordwall retorted that he did not notice any mistake nor did the expert commission. It was untrue that he was pleased by accidents.

GARRULOUS WITNESS.

A garrulous Russian named Siebert was the next witness to give evidence.

He said that he had never worked with Metropolitan Vickers, but he was very friendly with Thornton, who told him that he need not examine the firm's machinery too closely because it was all good stuff.

Witness said he told Thornton about defects in the switches, which had caused a slowing up of work generally.

Thornton thanked him and handed over three hundred roubles.

A BONUS.

Thornton stood up and said he did not admit Siebert's story. He gave Siebert 250 roubles purely as a bonus because he did his work well.

Siebert declared that he started sabotaging because he respected Thornton very much and believed all that he said. He added that Gregory started counter-Soviet propaganda as soon as he came to Dnieprostroy.

A. W. Gregory, who is constructional engineer, speaking with a strong Welsh accent, caused a stir in Court by sharply declaring: "This man Siebert insults me, injures my reputation and the Judge accepts his word without question. Is this justice."

GOOD OR NOT?

Judge Ulrich stopped him, saying: "Limit yourself to the facts. Your time is coming."

Gregory said he went to Dnieprostroy to set up oil switches. He was very careful in his work in order to keep up Metropolitan Vickers' high reputation.

Turning to the Commission of Experts, sitting in the corner of the court-room, he said that he erected three oil switches each weighing forty-five tons in forty-eight days. He must leave it to the experts to say whether that was good or not.

When accused of propaganda among the Russian workers, he pointed out that he could not speak Russian. It took him all his time to teach them what to do. Besides he was not interested in politics.

M. Sukorutchkin, Deputy Chief Engineer of the Moscow Electrical Station, one of the Russians accused, said he recovered 2,500 roubles from Thornton for sabotage and was instructed to paralyse the electrical industry in the case of war by wrecking the key stations.

"Thornton and I made the plan," he said.

Thornton, in evidence, denied that such conversation with Sukorutchkin ever occured or that he ever gave the man any money. The Court rose at 10 p.m.—Reuter.

CATEGORICAL STATEMENT.

London, Apr. 13.

In view of the nature of the charges made against the six British subjects at the Moscow trial, Sir John Simon made the following specific statement in the Commons:—

"None of these men has ever employed directly or indirectly in connection wth any branch of our intelligence services. None of them has ever supplied any information to any such branch. None of them has ever paid or promised any reward for such information or has been supplied with any money to obtain it. None of them has ever made any report to or on behalf of our intelligence service. All above statements are equally true of the Metropolitan Vickers Company itself—the Company has not and never has had any connection with our intelligence service whatever. It follows that any suspicions entertained or allegations made in any quarter to a contrary effect are in fact without any foundation whatever."

COMMUNICATION TROUBLE.

Telephonic lines between Moscow and London are reported to be working too irregularly for satisfactory communication to be established and telegram are subject to heavy delays.

PREMIER IN SHANGHAI

VISIT CAUSES SPECULATION

Shanghai, April 14.

Mr. Wang Ching-wei, President of the Executive Yuan, arrived unexpectedly in Shanghai from Nanking this morning. The Nanking leader's visit is giving rise to speculation regarding the political situation.

It is officially learned that immediately after his arrival, Mr. Wang called on Mr. T. V. Soong at the latter's residence. Mr. Wang, according to the official statement, has come to Shanghai specially to discuss financial affairs with Mr. Soong. He will return to Nanking to-night.

SOONG FOR WASHINGTON.

In an interview granted to Reuter, Mr. Wang Ching-wei stated that the Government still wanted to send Mr. T. V. Soong to Washington to participate in the international discussions on world economic problems. He had specially come to Shanghai to persuade Soong to accept the mission. Mr. Soong will decide whether to go or not this evening.

Mr. Sun Fo is not going, because of pressure of work in the Legislative Yuan.

Concerning the war situation in North China, Mr. Wang Ching-wei declared that Generals Sung Chih-yuan and Shang Cheng are assuming full charge of the war operations at the front. The recent withdrawal of the Chinese troops from the Great Wall was necessitated by military tactics, which cannot be regarded as a Chinese defeat. Reinforcements are being sent to the North according to the original plans, he said, and the Government's policy of resistance remains unchanged under all circumstances.

KIANGSI "REDS"

Regarding the Communist situation in Kiangsi, Mr. Wang Ching-wei said that before General Chiang Kai-shek's departure for the North, the campaign made considerable headway, but when General Chiang was called up to North China, the Communist forces again became active, but now with General Chiang again in Kiangsi, the situation is well in hand. The Communists have practically been surrounded by Government troops.

Mr. Wang further stated that Canton's expeditionary army will leave for North China very soon in accordance with schedule.—Reuter.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

CUSTOMS OFFICER IN COURT

Yesterday at the Kowloon Magistracy, there was a further development in the case against Mark William Hallums, master of the Chinese Maritime Customs launch, Kwan Lui, which had an armed encounter with a sailing junk in Junk Bay on April 1, resulting in the death of Ng Koo, a three-year-old girl.

On Wednesday afternoon, a special jury consisting of Messrs. C. C. Champkin (foreman), E. Cock and D. E. Clark, found that the circumstances of the case justified a verdict of manslaughter against the master of the Customs launch and the Coroner (Mr. H. R. Butters) committed Mr. Hallums to prison pending his trial.

Arising out of the verdict returned by the jury, Mr. Hallums again appeared at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon. Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, prefferred a charge of manslaughter against Mr. Hallum who was represented by Mr. W. A. Mackinlay.

In prefferring the charge, Mr. Fraser referred to the Coroner's Abolition Ordinance, No. 5 of 1888, under which a Magistrate's powers are equivalent to those which he has under a Magistrate's Ordinance. He stated that Mr. Hallums had been brought from the prison to the Court under a Judge's order, for the purpose of making his defence to the present charge and that he had no objection to a substantial bail of, say, $1,000.

Magistrate's Doubts.

Mr. Butters:—I think it would be most improper that I should be the Magistrate before whom the Lower Court procedure is taken against Mr. Hallums in view of the fact that I, as Coroner, have heard the evidence and have heard the verdict of a special jury.

Mr. Fraser: It would be convenient if the hearing could be held in Kowloon. I known of no objection to your Worship taking the proceedings.

Mr. Butters: As far as I can see, I am being asked to duplicate what I did on Wednesday afternoon. I would prefer the case to be taken by another Magistrate.

Mr. Fraser: Your Worship, there is only one Magistrate in Kowloon.

Mr. Butters: But, it doesn't need to be me. I have most decided objections to hearing this case.

Mr. Mackinlay: The Commissioner of the Chinese Maritime Customs will stand security for the bail. I see no reason for duplicating the enquiry and it will only cause Mr. Hallums unnecessary expense. While we are in your Worship's hands, we oppose this application for the enquiry to be re-heard.

Mr. Butters: I am being requested to take part in a duplicate of the first enquiry.

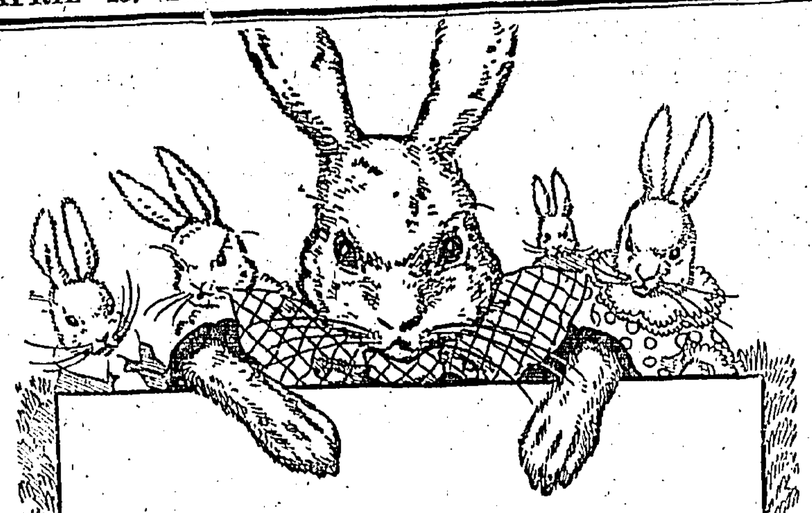

Mr. Mackinlay: With regard to the bail, the Commissioner of Chinese Maritime Customs, Mr. E. N. Ensor, is prepared to enter into a bond.

Mr. Butters: I am granting bail on the Coroner's enquiry and this charge.

Mr. Hallums was then admitted to bail of $1,000 and the case was formally remanded for a week.

ARMS POSSESSION.

CHINESE HEIRLOOMS WITH OUT LICENCE

The charge against Kwok Lun, who was found in possession of a number of old swords and daggers, was dismissed yesterday afternoon by Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy.

Mr. O. E. C. Marton appeared for the defence, while Sub-Inspector W. A. Smith prosecuted.

Inspector Smith, in outlining the case, said that on the evening of March 25, notification was received that a Chinese residing in Kowloon City was in possession of arms and literature. The police in searching the house found several old daggers and a cutlass in a box, the keys having been produced willingly by the defendant.

Sergeant R. G. Butcher in evidence stated that on March 25 he searched the house. Under defendant's bed a box was discovered containing one old cutlass. Continuing the search in the cock-loft, four small daggers were found wrapped in paper. In another cubicle, three old-fashioned daggers were also found.

Chun Sui-ping, a Chinese Police Sergeant, gave similar evidence.

Mr. Marton asked that the defendant be dishcharged on the grounds that there was no evidence that he had not got a licence. The four large daggers had descended to defendant from his great-grandfather, who died 51 years ago, and defendant had kept them as heirlooms with no intention of using them. He had not thought it necessary to procure a license for them.

Mr. Butters, however, thought defendant technically guilty, and ordered the confiscation of the cutlass and four small daggers. The larger old-fashioned daggers could be kept by defendant in the event of his applying for a license.

Regarding the literature, defendant said in evidence that the book had belonged to his cousin, who died in 1928. Defendant could could not read it and had not realised that it was a Trind Society book.

This second charge was dismissed by the Magistrate.

DANGER OF DISINTERGRATION FACES MAMAK TOURNEY

THE latest development in the back biting squabble between the Incognitos and the Mamak hockey authorities—a contretemps which becomes more and more distasteful as it proceeds, is a protest by the Incognitos, based on some extraordinary arguments, against the Mamak committee which they reached at their meeting last Wednesday.

Briefly the complainants refuse to accept the committee's findings on the grounds that they are contrary to Rule 22 of the Mamak competition. And in extenso, they submit that it was no fault of theirs that the all important match with H.M.S. Tamar was not played before the expiration of the official season: that the Secretary of the naval team originally conceded the points to them, and that in any case they are only prepared to meet the Radio in a deciding championship match if and when the Tamar defeat them.

INGENIOUS INTERPRETATION

The club's interpretion of Rule 22, which is the chief basis of their protest, is, to say the least, ingenious. They argue that it means a deciding championship match can only be played if two or more teams are level on points at the close of the season with the same number of matches played.

When the season officially closed the Incognitos were several games and points in arrears of the then leaders, the Radio Sports Club.

"We didn't ask for an extension of time to complete our fixtures" state the Incognitos. But the chief point is that they accepted the extension, and that extension was given on the understanding that any further points they gained would be only from matches won.

RULE NULL AND VOID.

The fact that the Mamak committee, with the connivance of the Incognitos created a precedent in extending the official season, automatically wipes out the application of Rule 22 in the manner in which the Incognitos are now interpreting it, even supposing their intrepretation is a good one.

But there is a more significant side to the whole question than the mere correct or incorrect judgment of the Mamak Committee.

A squabble of this type which is bringing the season to such an unfortunate close can, and invariably does, cause a lot of harm to the sport concerned.

In fact a position which exists to-day might well be the means of disintergrating the whole Mamak competition, and the collapse of the biggest organisation for conducting local competitive hockey.

—MOST VITAL PRINCIPLE.

It may be argued that vital points of principle are concerned in this dispute, but the most important principle involved, and one which the Incognitos certainly have overlooked, is that of putting the sporting side of the game first.

Even if they were dissatisfied with the Mamak committee's ruling, the Incognitos would have acted far more in the interests of local hockey had they accepted the decisions with good grace and got on with their job of beating the Radio.

A superficial survey of the position, even prior to the latest development, would convince one that a real need exists for complete revision of the Mamak tournament rules. Several instances this season have demonstrated how loose and impracticable in working they are. This should be the task of the commitee before the next season starts.

DEAU GESTE OPPORTUNITY.

In the meantime the Incognitos should accept an unfortunate position with the best grace possible. The beneficial effects to hockey to be derived from continuing such a quarrel are obscured by the more important and less happy reactions it may have on the game in general in the Colony.

The Incognitos still have the opportunity of extending a beau geste by withdrawing their protest, and concentrating on their championship match with the Radio.

TO-DAY'S GAME OFF

MAMAK CHAMPIONSHIP TIE WIPED OUT.

AS a result of the latest action of the Incognitos in withdrawing from the Mamak hockey league, their tie with the Radio Sports Club to have been played this afternoon to decide the championship has been abandoned, the Radio being given a walk-over.

OPPORTUNITY TO REPEAT 1930 CUP FEAT

"SUNDAY HERALD" & LAI WAH TROPHIES AT STAKE

ENGLAND TO WIN AND CIVILIANS TO LOSE

(By "VERITAS".)

But it is not insignificant to observe that the only time they have yet won the Charity and Lai Wah Cups was in 1930, when they achieved the "double". Will history repeat itself this Easter?

The Chinese teams have not yet been published, so that it is impossible to judge their prospects in this direction.

But the opposition is well known. England has quite a useful side for the Charity Cup, and the Civilians are fairly well represented for Monday.

STRONG ENGLAND TEAM.

England have made several changes from the side which trounced Wales in the semi-final at Christmas. Combey of the Artillery comes in for Fogwell of the Club, Shirras finds a place among the intermedintes instead of Robertson: Gough of the Artillery displaces Wood on the right wing, Langmead of the Navy comes in for Perkins at centre forward, whilst Lieut. Hocquard, the speedy Lincolns winger, will operate on the left in place of Baldry.

These changes in no way weaken the English side. If anything it suggests a more formidable combination. With Allan and Strange teaming up again in the rear division, there will be no weak link there, whilst the introduction of Shirras is a definite acquisition. Bliss too is playing at the top of his form just now so that the half back line promises to be fairly effective.

Up forward Gough and Bryant, who have been playing together for some considerable time should form a good right wing, and the selectors have been equally ingenious by putting old colleagues like Ridley and Hocquard together on the left. Langmead is a thrustful leader and will add balance to a fast moving and potential line of attackers.

If they strike true form this team should be good enough to overcome China's elect.

DIFFERENT PROPOSITION.

A somewhat different proposition is the Civilians's eleven for Monday. In its original form it was not too imposing and things have not been helped by the enforced retirement of A.V. Gosano from the forward line.

The Civilian's chief concern, however is further back. Marques is a sound, in fact, obvious choice for goal keeper, but can Martin and Syd Strange prove strong enough to hold the nippy Chinese forwards? And by the same token are the half backs, Bliss, Channing and Duncan likely to attain the standard of skill required not only to counter the Chinese attacks, but to create the necessary openings for their forwards?

I rather doubt it.

It would seem that Johnstone of the Police will succed A.V. Gosano as leader of the attack, and seeing that he has Shepherd on one side and E. Strange on the other, there is no reason why they, togetther with B. Gosano and Santos, should not constitute an energetic quintette.

The line-up of the European teams will in all probability be:

"SUNDAY HEARLD" CUP.

England:—Combey (R.A.): Allan (R.A.) and S. Strange (Club): Shirras (Navy) Pardoe (R.A.) and Bliss (Kowloon): Gough (R.A.), Bryant (R.A.), Langmead (Navy), Ridley (Lincolns) and Lieut. Hocquard (Lincolns).

LAI WAH CUP

Civilians:—Marques (St. Joseph's): Martin and S. Strange (Club): Bliss (Kowloon), Channing (Police) and A. Duncan (Club): B. Gosano (St. Joseph's), E. Strange (Club), Johnston (Police), Shepherd (Police), and Santos (St. Joseph's).

LEAGUE FIXTURES.

The following is the league fixtures for to-day:

Division I (kick-off, 4.30 p.m.), St. Joseph's v. Recreio, at King's Park.

Division II.—Navy v. H.K.F.C., at Kowloon. Kick-off 3 p.m.

Kowloon v. Eastern, at Kowloon. Kick-off 4.30 p.m.

Lincolns v. South China, at Chatham Road. Kick-off, 4.30 p.m.

HOCKEY SEASON REVIEW

WINTER OF MANY MOMENTOUS INCIDENTS

RECORDS OF MAMAK COMPETITION AND H.K. CLUB MATCHES

By "Bully-Off"

ALTHOUGH the 1932-33 season has been the most successful since the introduction of the game to the Colony it has been a Winter of many sensations and surprises, especially in connexion with the Mamak competition.

* * *

UNDOUBTEDLY the outstanding event of the year was the reconstitution of the Mamak tournament, a move which caused no small sensation in local hockey circles. The situation arose following the sudden awakening by the Navy officials attached to the China Fleet that the units competing in the tournament were doing so in contravention to the ruling of the English Hockey Association to which they were affiliated. In view of this, the Mamak committee had no alternative but to withdraw the shield or they would have found themselves with only seven civilian teams competing, the Navy having intimated that unless the trophy was withdrawn they would have no alternative but to cancel the entries from the units. A similar position would have arisen in regard to the Army units for they in turn were also affiliated to the Home-side Association.

* * *

ANOTHER item of interest which occurred soon after the opening of the season, was the cancellation of the match between the All India Olympic Hockey team, world's champions, and a representative Hongkong side. Arrangements were made to stage the game at Sookumpoo but no information could be obtained as to the movements of the touring side. No communication was received from Mr. Gupta by Mr. G. E. R. Divett, then secretary of the Club, and the Chichibu Maru passed through the Colony without the tourists. It was a keen disappointment for local hockey enthusiasts.

* * *

THE second half of the season, as far as the Mamak competition is concerned has been one of perpetual wrangling until now letters of protest are pouring in to the secretary from all angles. The first came from the Radio soon after the New Year, their grievance being that one of the umpires in their game with the R.A.S.C., by whom they were defeated, was a member of the R.A.S.C. club. They claimed that the decisions were biased although they made no protest before the bully-off.

* * *

DURING the same week end came the controversy of the Incognitos-St. Andrew's game, abandoned six minutes from time by C.Q.M.S. Weyman, following the refusal of a spectator to leave the field when ordered so to do by the umpire. At that point of the game no goals had been scored and when a protest lodged came before the Mamak committee they allowed the game to stand at the score the game was abandoned. This was, as I said at the time, a decision without precedent in sport, and penalised the Incogs who were then in a position to offer a strong challenge to the Radio. Had the game been re-played as it should have been, probably all the wrangling and protesting of the past two or three weeks would not have taken place.

* * *

NEXT came a protest from the Radio against the extension of time to enable the Incogs and other competing teams to complete their fixtures, followed in quick succession by protests from the Tamar and the Incogs, from the former concerning the concession of points by them to the Incogs for an unplayed game and from the latter against the decision of the Mamak executive in not granting them the points in that match.

HOWEVER, there is little need for comment on the matter here, as it is dealt with more fully in an adjoining column.

* * *

ANOTHER move of paramount importance which has been discussed from time to time is the formation of the Central Hockey Board in the Colony. It was originally intended that the Hongkong Club call the meeting but as they made no move the Mamak committee took it on their own shoulders to convene the meeting. This was done by Mr. O. England White, chairman of the tournament. The response was most disheartening—only four of the Civilian teams in the Colony sent representatives. The idea of holding a meeting then was abandoned but another will be convened in the near future by Mr. R. C. Reed, secretary of the Incognito, when it is hoped there will be a larger attendance. The meeting should be open to all hockey enthusiasts in the Colony and I would like to see it under the chairmanship of Mr. A. A. Dand.

* * *

THE only one unfortunate incident in the Club's games worthy of note was the ordering off of W. E. Williams, centre forward and Welsh International, for dangerous play in the Club-Jat game on the U.S.R.C. ground.

* * *

SECOND SWIMMING INVITATION SENT SHANGHAI

ASSOCIATION ON THE MOVE

AN AMBITIOUS PROGRAMME

INTERPORT, POLO AND GALAS

For the first time in the history of local aquatics, invitations have been sent to Shanghai in regard to an Interport contest this year from two different swimming organisations.

This fact was revealed at the first council meeting of the new Hongkong Swimming Association on Thursday evening, when it was stated that the Association had written to Shanghai inviting them to send a team to Hongkong this summer.

At the annual meeting of the V.R.C. recently, it was made known that the club, which is running independently of the Association, had already extended a similar invitation to Shanghai.

INTERPORT CANDIDATES.

According to discussion which centred round this move of the Association, it would appear that the combined clubs of the Colony will be in the position to turn out a very strong and representative side to oppose the Northerners. S. H. Wong, back stroke champion will be available, as also will L/Cpl. Campbell, who is reported to have improved 20 per cent. as a result of his winter training, whilst Shek Kum-pui, who did so well last year will probably find his place in the team.

Others who will very likely help to form a powerful combination are A. Donn, who is an excellent 100 and 200 yards swimming, and Lange, whose best races are the 100, 220 and 440 yards. That the combined clubs can turn out very strong polo and diving teams and sides for team races was also optimistically discussed.

It is possible that the Army may not join the Association, but if this decision is reached, it will not affect Army members of private clubs playing for these teams. The Navy are definitely joining, and it was decided on Thursday to start the water polo league early next month.

For this the Association will have four or five baths at their disposal, including those of the Y.M.C.A., the South China Athletic Association and Tsung Tsin.

The ambitious programme also provides for a series of International games including water polo, swimming and diving, and gala nights of an international character will be organised at regular intervals.

INCOGS' DRASTIC ACTION

WITHDRAW FROM TOURNEY

"SAVE DISAGREEMENT AND BOTHER"

"To save all this disagreement and bother in connexion with the Mamak championship we have decided to withdraw form the tournament and official notification of this will be sent in to-day" stated Mr. E. V. Reed, secretary of the Incognitos this morning.

This is the culminating point of dispute between the Incognitos and the Mamak officials, and by their action the Incogs automatically give the championship to the Radio Sports Club.

Dates Fixed for English International Tennis Meets

The council meeting of the Lawn Tennis Association have confirmed the dates of the most important fixtures. They are:

Great Britain v Spain (first round, Davis Cup), Barcelona, April 21, 22, and 23.

Great Britain v. United States (Wightman Cup), Forest Hills, U.S.A., on a date in August to be fixed.

Great Britain v. Germany (women), Bournemouth, June 21 and 22.

London v. Paris, Dulwich, March 16, 17, and 18.

Britain Hard Court Championship, Bournemouth, May 1-6.

The other rounds of the Davis Cup, if Britain is successful against Spain, the French championships during the last week in May and the first week in June, and the Wimbledon championships a month later will give the players who are selected a very busy time.

It is a moot point as to whether it is good for the players to be so fully occupied. They become jaded and temperamental by the time Wimbledon arrives.

There are thirty prominent public schools who are receiving the benefit of the L.T.A. coaching scheme. This is a big increase on last year, and proves that the public schools authorities are gradually beginning to realise that lawn tennis does not harm a boy's prowess at cricket or other games.

Jock Christie Professional Golfer Leaves Hongkong

After a successful stay of several months, "Jock" Christie, the professional golfer, who has been coaching on the Hongkong Club courses, leaves to-day to return to Scotland.

Christie marked his second visit to the Colony by one or two outstanding achievements.

One one occasion he completed the Old Course at Fanling in 71, five strokes under bogey. The round consisted of four 3's, eleven 4's and three 5's. But for unfortunate putting errors at the 5th, 9th, and 10th holes, Christie would have established unusual figures.

His best performance in a foursome was with W. S. Hillier against R. H. Budd, the Colony's champion, and MacWright. Hillier and the young professional won on the last green, thanks to Christies' putting. The two staged a great recovery after being three down at the 8th.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Although George O'Brien and Maureen O'Sullivan, Ireland's foremost contributions to the speaking screen, worked at the same studio for several years, they never appeared together until they were cast for the leading roles in "Robbers' Roost", now showing at the King's Theatre. Maude Eburne, Reginald Owen, William Pawley and Walter McGrail head the supporting cast of this Fox Films offering, which deals with the efforts of a rascally ranch foreman to "hi-jack" his employer's entire herd. O'Brien enacts the part of an unwilling member of the foreman's band and Miss O'Sullivan that of the ranch owner's sister. Louis King directed and Dudley Nichols wrote the screen play from the original novel by Zane Grey.

"Me and My Gal"

Based in an original story by Barry Connors and Philip Klein, directed by Raoul Walsh and with the featured roles played by Joan Bennett and Spencer Tracy, "Me and My Gal", the new Fox Comedy-romance comes to the King's Theatre on Sunday. In "Me and My Gal", Joan Bennett portrays the role of a sophisticated cashier in a downtown New York restaurant, while Tracy appears as a smart young detective who falls in love with her. Their romance leads to exciting paths, particularly for Tracy, who, as the result of his romance, runs to earth a gang of desperate bank robbers. Supporting Miss Bennett and Tracy is a cast of notable that includes Marion Burns, formerly of the New York Stage, who made her picture debut in "The Golden West", J. Farrell Macdonald, Henry B. Walthall, George Walsh, Neal Madison and George Chandler.

"The Mummy"

You'll see the strangest, most thrilling breath-taking sight you have ever imagined in Universal's sensational film, "The Mummy", showing at the Central Theatre on Saturday. A mummy—3700 years old—comes to life before your eyes to start the strangest drama of reincarnation and love that persists through the ages! Prepare now for the greatest screen experience of your life. Universal producer of the world's most electric dramas—"Frankenstein", "Dracular", "Phanton of the Opera" and others, brings to this theatre its supreme achievement in the mystic and occult—"The Mummy" starring Karloff in a role that shatters all records for sheer thrill and uncanny power! You'll never forget this strange man out of the ancient past who loosed his mystic spells on the modern world, who claimed his love after centuries, who threatened to sacrifice the happiness of two young lovers on the altar of an ancient passion. Karloff in the greatest picture of his sensational career, with the alurring Zita Johann, handsome David Manners, Arthur Byron, Edward Van Sloan, Bramwell Fletcher, Noble Johnson, and a large cast. Dazzling, spectacular sets of ancient civilization, colour, excitement, drama, romance—"The Mummy" will live with you forever.

"As You Desire Me."

Never before has Greta achieved so emotional and convincing a performance as in "As You Desire Me," her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film which is at the Queen's Theatre. The reason for this is perhaps two-fold; the obvious appreciation of the glamourous star for her unusual role, and the solid material provided by playwright Luigi Pirandello in his brilliant stage play from which the screen feature was deftly adapted.

Credit for the treatment of the picturization is given Gene Markey with George Fitzmaurice accorded directorial honours. Fitzmaurice, always pictorial and strikingly artistic, is to be congratulated for the splendid handling he has given a situation that might tend toward triteness in less capable hands. The masquerade of the cafe entertainer as the missing wife of the Italian nobleman is a difficult promise. But Miss Garbo and Fitzmaurice made it not only plausible but intensely human and real.

Melvyn Douglas plays opposite Miss Garbo as the brooding nobleman who accepts her as his wife, even after he knows of her impersonation. Douglas' performance is thorough and convincing. Erich Von Stroheim heads the supporting cast as the principal menace and others featured include Owen Moore, Hedda Hopper, Rafaela Ottiano, Warburton Gamble, Albert Conti, William Ricciardi and Roland Varno.

"Robbers' Roost."

What is said to be George O'Brien's outstanding screen achievement will be seen to-day at the King's Theatre with the opening of his newest Fox Films vehicle, "Robbers' Roost." It has a supporting cast headed by Maureen O'Sullivan and one of Zane Grey's most exciting tales as a basis for its plot.

O'Brien is portrayed as a fugitive who joins a group of cattle rustlers headed by the foreman of a large ranch. The ranch owner, a wealthy Britisher, knows nothing about the business, and the foreman plans to round up the entire herd, drive it over the border into Mexico and sell it before his employer wakes to his loss. The arrival of the owner's sister from London, however, changes O'Brien's view and brings about the climax of the picture.

Besides Miss O'Sullivan, the cast includes Maude Eburne, who has the role of her aunt; Reginald Owen as the ranch owner; William Pawley as the scheming foreman; Walter McGrail, Robert Greig, Doris Lloyd and Frank Rice. Louis King, rated as one of the leading "outdoor" directors in Hollywood, directed the picture. The Zane Grey story was adapted by Dudley Nicholds.

"Me And My Gal."

Though before she was nine years old, Joan Bennett wrote and directed a playlet in which she and her sisters, Constance and Barbara, played the characters, she had no ambition to follow in the footsteps of her distinguished father, Richard Bennett, and her mother, Adrienne Morrison, and seek a career on the stage. She was determined to become a business woman and open an interior decorating shop. In fact, she attempted to induce her mother to leave the stage and take a partnership.

The enterprise never materialized and heredity got the chance to assert itself. Miss Bennett went on the stage. Her forbears were all famous stage people, her grandmother, Rose Wood, and her grandfather, Lewis Morrison, being stage favourites for many years. Ability was in her blood.

Miss Bennett is one of the youngest leading women in pictures, yet she looks forward to the future when she hopes to become a director and, at the same time, design the art for her sets. She has her own ideas regarding picture production; radical, perhaps, and interesting. She sees no reason why authors, artists and producers should not make successful pictures for the screen.

In "Me And My Gal," Miss Bennett shares leading honours with Spencer Tracy. It will be recalled that they appeared together in "She Wanted A Millionaire," one of the most successful pictures of 1931.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

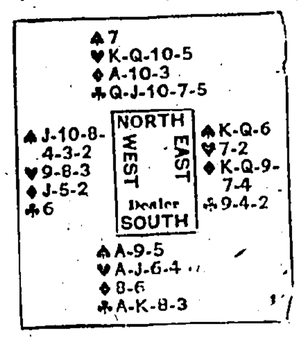

By W. E. McKenney

The increased grand slam premium which went into effect with the new laws has had a profound effect on the bidding of grand slams, not only from a mathematical, but also from a psychological standpoint.

Formerly players were extremely cautious about grand slam bids, and if that declaration was finally reached the hand was usually so obvious that no play was necessary.

With the increased premium players are searching their hands more carefully for grand slam possibilities, and there is a tendency to bid doubtful slams in the hope that they can be made by careful play or favorable distribution.

A grand slam is a good gamble if it has an even chance of success, and if the declarer has confidence in his ability to get every possible trick out of the cards, he may bid grand slams rather freely.

The Bidding

To-day's hand was played in a club which is noted for its high stakes. Both sides were vulnerable and South opened the bidding with one club.

West passed and North responded with one heart—a one over one force. South's next bid was three hearts, which was a game-demand force and guaranteed at least four hearts in the hand plus some extra high card strength beyond that required for the original bid.

North bid four clubs and South's next bid was four no trump—a very illuminating bid which showed clearly that South did not wish to sign off, which he could easily have done by bidding four hearts or five clubs.

For slam bidding purposes it is assumed that an original bid shows control of two suits, and South would not have dared to invite a slam unless he held control of a third; therefore North could now count his partner for four hearts headed by the ace, four or five clubs headed by the ace and king, and the ace of spades.

This assured that there would be no losing tricks in spades; hearts or clubs, and the only risk in bidding a grand slam would be the possibility of losing a diamond trick. North gambled that South's diamonds would either be strong enough or short enough to avoid that loss and bid seven hearts.

It is noteworthy that he bid the grand slam in his four-card suit rather than his five-card suit, always remembering the possibility of using his fifth club for a discard.

The Play

East quite properly opened the king of spades, which declarer won in dummy with the ace and returned a small spade to be ruffed with the five of hearts.

He put dummy in the lead with a club and ruffed the last spade with the ten of hearts. He now led the king and queen of hearts, overtaking the queen with the ace and drawing West's last trump with the jack of hearts.

Four more rounds of clubs now enable dummy to discard the six of diamonds; so declarer was able to win the last trick ruffing the ten of diamonds in dummy.

It cannot be denied that North and South did some rather bold bidding on this hand, and under the old scoring it would have been considered totally unsound. However, the extra premium made the gamble worth while and North and South were rewarded with a score of 2960 points.

It is interesting to note that the grand slam could not be made in clubs.

TELEPRINTER SERVICES

GOVERNMENT PLANS REGULATIONS

The draft of an Ordinance to make provision for licensing, permitting, regulating and controlling the special services known as teleprinting, teletyping and telephotography is published in the Gazette.

These are modern developments of telegraphy of which use is being made or contemplated by different organisations in the Colony and it seems desirable to place such use under proper control, to regulate competition in what is now an open field and to prevent induction or other interference with Government or other services.

The Hong Kong Telephone Company Ltd. has under the Telephone Ordinances, 1925 and 1930, the sole right, subject to those Ordinances, to operate public telephonic communication within the Colony, including trunk line telephonic communication therein for communicating with places outside the Colony, and although the three services mentioned are capable of being operated over telephone lines they are essentially telegraphic services which are equally capable of being operated over telegraph lines and possibly also by wireless.

PREMIER'S MISSION

AIMS IN VISIT TO WASHINGTON

WAR DEBTS AND ECONOMICS

London, Apr. 13.

The Prime Minister told the House of Commons to-night that when in the United States he will discuss, with President Roosevelt, war debts, wholesale price levels and disarmament.

Both Governments were agreed that there should be a preliminary and candid examination of the war debt situation of which would be one of the greatest blessings to the present generation.

An instalment of the debt payments became due on June 15th and before then there would have to be a personal and candid examination for it was not going to be merely a matter of experts.

No provisional agreement, however, subject to the acceptance of the Cabinet, would be entered into as a result of his Washington visit.

There would merely be exchanges of views.

Mr. MacDonald added that he would take the opportunity of the visit to speak to Mr. Roosevelt as President of the International Economic Conference.

No great success could result from that conference unless part of the obstructions raised in the way of international trade were removed. He wanted to get co-operation of the most cordial character and if he could do that he thought his mission would be successful.—British Wireless.
